We Lost One Game.

For the first time this season our home team of base ballers has been defeated, the score last Thursday resulting as follows: Hopkinsville 7, Nashville Maroons 8. Errors in the field let in two scores in the eighth and the same number in the ninth inning, and placed the visitors out ahead. But on Friday our boys redeemed themselves in fine shape, capturing the game in a walk by the heavy score of 12 to 3. The Maroons made about a dozen errors, and they, together with the heavy batting of the Locals, was bound to result in a victory for our boys. Every member of the Locals made safe hits, batting the visiting pitcher in almost any direction at will. Schmidt, who pitched for the home nine Friday, struck out fifteen men during the game. Workman was not in the last game and Jeff Morris held down left like a professional. He also did some clever batting, although it was his first game this season. The Locals will go over to Henderson today and play two games, and the Henderson club returns Thursday and Friday—at Athletic Park, this city.

Accident to an Ice Man.

Yesterday morning while Ellis & Co.'s ice wagon was making its route out North Main street, Mr. Henry Frankel's 4-year-old boy wanted to take a ride with Mr. Lee Ellis, and after he had been taken up he slipped from the seat to the ground right at the feet of the horses. Mr. Ellis at once saw the danger and the little fellow was in and reached down to lift him from the ground. Mr. Ellis, however, lost his balance and fell to the ground and it was one of his broken bones, Frankel saw the danger of her little boy and rushing from the yard succeeded in getting him out of his dangerous position without his receiving a scratch. Mr. Ellis sustained no injury except a broken rib, but will be laid up several days as a result of the accident.

County Court Matters.

The following cases were disposed of by Judge Breathitt since our last report: Harrison Campbell, colored, breach of peace, fined $2.50 and costs; Frankel's 4-year-old boy, fined 1 cent and costs; Geo. and John Green, both colored, disorderly conduct, both fined $2.50 and costs. The Greens could not put up the required amount and were sent to the workhouse. Wm. Brewer, colored, charged with gaming, was fined $20, and Wm. Powell, colored, on a similar charge was required to pay $20, with trimmings, also. The latter two defendants were arrested at Kelly by Marshal Boyd and brought to this city for trial.

Burglars at Allenaville.

Last Tuesday night Allenaville was visited by burglars, and several citizens are losers by their visit. The robbers entered the house of L. & N. railroad agent Campbell, and got his gold watch but secured little money. They got $50 in the haul on Coleman Gill, and Mr. Shinnick is $7 behind and minus a pair of shoes. They used chloroform, and had little trouble in taking possession of the place. They were evidently experts and left no clew behind by which they could be identified.

Our Second Nine Will Play.

The Hopkinsville second nine will play Clarksville's nine No. 2, at Athletic Park to-morrow afternoon. The game will be called at 2:30, in order that the visitors may return home in the evening. Our second nine is composed of good players, and will put up a first-class game. The Clarksville boys also put up a fine game, and those who attend will see an excellent amateur match. Admission will be 15 cents. Ladies free.

Suicide at Morgantown.

Last Saturday evening at Morgantown, Tony Schnepf, an Evansville butcher, took his own life by sending a bullet crashing through his brain. Schnepf left his home two days before and had shown signs of trouble, but those who knew him did not suspect that he contemplated self destruction. A note was found on his person saying he was in trouble, only this and nothing more. He was a married man about 40 years old.

Moss Heimssohn Set Free.

Moss Heimssohn, the merchant who assigned recently at Lafayette, and who was indicted at Louisville for obtaining goods under false pretences, was convicted and sentenced to two years' servitude in the penitentiary. Subsequently, however, he secured a rehearing and was acquitted.—Cadiz Telephone.

MADE QUICK WORK.

The Amateur Highwaymen Go to the Eddyville Penitentiary.

Two of the three negroes who held up Mr. T. J. Tandy, near Pembroke Thursday morning, and robbed him of $20 and a silver match box, were caught in Clarksville Friday by Marshal Burrows, of Pembroke. All three of them were in McGee's store buying goods. They had already bought complete new outfits, including leather belts and black silk caps. They had put on their new clothes, leaving the old ones at a cabin near by. They had then returned and were buying shoes when the officer appeared. The smallest of the three was near the back door and when the other two were arrested he darted out of the back door and escaped. Those caught were brought to the city Saturday morning. They were given the names of Jim Elliott and Wyatt Mallory alias Melvin. The first is about 20 years old, a big, black, strapping fellow with a mean countenance. The other is 13 years old and somewhat lighter. He said he lived at Springfield, Penn. Judge McCarroll empaneled a special grand jury and they were indicted before noon. They were tried at 1 o'clock, being defended by Mr. G. W. Southall, and prosecuted by Mr. Garrett. The jury took the case at 1:45 and in 15 minutes returned a verdict of 10 years in the penitentiary for Elliott and 5 years for Mallory.

They entered a plea of guilty and made no denial. They were identified by Mr. Tandy and $4 of the money and the match box recovered. They were very much surprised when they learned that their crime was not a simple workhouse offense. They confessed when caught and said they were willing to be taken right to the workhouse without a trial. The sheriff will weave with them for Eddyville this week.

END OF THE TROUBLE.

Compromise Effected in Union's Railroad Tax Will Re-imburse Mr. Preston.

MORGANFIELD, June 19.—It is authoritatively announced that the great railroad tax question, which has been absorbing all attention in parts of Union county, is about to be settled. Attorney John Peland, who represents bond holder Preston, says his client is willing to accept a compromise offered some time ago by referees appointed from the tax districts.

The term of the compromise which Mr. Preston agrees to accept, are that he shall be paid $75,000 the amount he paid for the bonds, with six per cent. interest from the time the papers were transferred to him. It will be paid in three installments. The figures were offered to Mr. Preston at a conference held in the Barrett house in Henderson some months ago.

At that time he refused to listen to the proposition, but held out for the full face value of the bonds, with the interest added. Some influences have been at work on him since, however, and he has come around to a compromise.

The effect that a settlement of the bond business will have in the tax question has not yet been seen. Property in the Caseyville, Sturgis and Linton precincts has greatly depreciated because nobody cared to invest in the land with the railroad bonds hanging like clouds over it.

Now it is believed property will appreciate in value, the farmers will take more interest in their work, and everything will take on a more rosy color. The same people who said they would die before paying the full amount of the indebtedness, will it is understood, cheerfully fork over their proportion of the compromise.

Papers that will forever settle the question are now in course of preparation by attorneys and formal acknowledgment will be made in a few days. The matter of the deal has been kept a profound secret for some time and it was only by accident that the facts were learned.

Three Bold Robbers.

As Essex Gupton, a young man residing in the southern portion of this county, was riding along the highway in the vicinity of Oak Grove, near the Tennessee state line, about Saturday afternoon, he was suddenly stopped by three colored youths, who ordered him to throw up his hands, which he did.

One of the party, named Charley Griffey, then went through his pockets, robbing him of some money and other valuables. The three negroes, two of whom were not known to Gupton, then disappeared in the direction of Tennessee. Gupton had warrants sworn out in Squire Barker's court for the thieves, and the Clarksville authorities were also notified, but the parties have not as yet been apprehended.

His Face Severely Cut.

CARMI, ILL., June 22.—Mr. Potter, of Hopkinsville, Ky., was severely cut in the face yesterday by Green Patrick, recently pardoned from the penitentiary.

This probably refers to W. T. Potter, who married Mrs. McGee in this city about eighteen months ago. The last heard of him he was in Henderson, Ky.

TO-DAY'S CONVENTION.

THE DEMOCRATIC HOST ASSEMBLES AT LOUISVILLE.

Geopolitical About the Convention and the Prospects of the Candidates—There Will be Five or Six Entries for Governor.

The indications are that there will be a field full of dark horses for Governor and other offices in to-day's convention. It is understood that A. S. Berry, W. J. Stone, S. B. Backner and perhaps J. D. Black will all be voted for in addition to the three announced candidates for Governor. The Hardin and Clay forces are trying to induce Stone or Berry to be Chairman of the Convention, but they were still holding out yesterday and did not hesitate to say that they would not object to the nomination for Governor. Hardin has 289 and Clay 209 votes instructed, while there are 364 uninstructed votes. It is not surprising that the talk of dark horses is giving them both more or less uneasiness.

The following paragraph is from Saturday's Post:

"The bee is still buzzing in Berry's bonnet, and his entrance into the race for the gubernatorial nomination fills the prediction made many months ago by our Washington correspondent. Mr. Berry is willing to lead the Democratic hosts to victory next November, and is only waiting the call of his party. Up to the time of the Railroad Commissioners' convention, at Winchester, Mr. Berry was supposed to be a warm supporter of the Hon. C. M. Clay for Governor, but he is now for the Hon. A. S. Berry. His friends claim that, notwithstanding the instructions of the delegates from the First District, when the name of Berry is called they will vote solidly for him, and that he will have fifty votes from the majority of the delegates. J. Stone is expected to poll at least 25 votes from the First District, and as they will mostly come from Hardin, it is making the situation in the Governor's race grow more uncertain every day. The candidates for Governor are now five in number, Berry, Clay, Hardin, Alford and Stone."

"The scheme to beat Jack Hendrick has grown and developed until it has become a plan to beat Hardin, Hendrick and Norman. It is a plan in which all the minor candidates are taking part. The plan was conceived yesterday and another this morning. Their plan, which has leaked out, is to put ex-Lieutenant Governor James B. Hinson in nomination for Attorney General. He will be the man for whom the real fight will be made. To catch as many of the instructed votes as possible, G. G. Gilbreath, of Shelbyville, and E. F. Peak, Commonwealth's Attorney of Oldham county, will also be placed in nomination. At the proper time they will withdraw and thus that part of their strength they can to Hindman."

"The Hon. C. M. Clay, Jr., and his friends are feeling more encouraged to-day. They are confident that things will turn out all right. This morning Mr. Clay held a conference with Senator John D. Harris, of Richmond, his father-in-law, John T. Hinton, of Paris, and a number of other gentlemen who are working in his interest. They have entirely recovered from their scare caused by Congressmen Berry's most all right. They do not think that he will injure Mr. Clay's chances in the least. At the conference it is said, it was determined to make every effort to pull the uninstructed delegates into line for Mr. Clay, and ways and means were discussed by which this could be done most advantageously."

"There is no denying the fact that Gen. Hardin and his friends are being much alarmed over the outlook. The entrance of Berry as a dark horse in the race and the 126 votes controlled by Capt. Stone, have given them the uneasiness to Hardin and his friends, who are now not so certain that they will win on the first ballot. They realize, too, that a new party of ball-bats will lessen Mr. Hardin's chances for the nomination. Mr. Hardin still refuses to say much for publication. He is too busy sending telegrams and letters, and conferring with his friends."

The Convention will be called to order at noon, in Music Hall, by the Hon. Jno. D. Carroll. It is not likely that there will be any closing before to-morrow afternoon at the earliest.

Postmaster Brasher Drops Dead.

Dr. Albert Brasher, postmaster at Allegany, Todd county, dropped dead of heart disease Friday evening about 4 o'clock. The deceased was seventy-three years old. He was never known to be in poor health, and was in the best of spirits with his family around him when he suddenly fell a corpse. He leaves a wife and seven children.

A SIMPLE PHONOGRAPH.

How One May be Constructed at Small Expense.

Not as Perfect as the Edison Apparatus, But Sufficient to Demonstrate the Various Principles of the Talking Machine.

A home-made phonograph can easily be constructed according to the description and sketches from the Philadelphia Record, given below. A real phonograph comes very high, while the one described will be very little expense. Of course, it is not as perfect as the Edison apparatus, but is sufficient to demonstrate the principle and to amuse the amateur.

The first thing to be made is the mouthpiece, forming the receiver and transmitter at the same time. It is represented in Fig. 1 by a horizontal section. In Fig. 2 by a vertical transverse section. A small wooden funnel (A) can be turned by a cabinet maker for a few cents; circular disk (B) of very thin sheet iron, two wooden rails (C) and (D), and the feather spring (E) carrying the dulled point of a needle go to make up the mouthpiece. The sheet iron is held by cement to the nether part of the speaking funnel; to this are finally attached the two rails (C) and (D), extending somewhat beyond the funnel (A); the spring (E) has to be fastened to one of the rails by minute screws, as shown in Fig. 1. Between the spring (E) and the disk (B) a short piece of rubber hose should be placed. It will be observed that the point is not centered, but stands to one side of the center. The guide rails (C) and (D) serve to run the apparatus across the gunboats Speedy and Haleyton, and the admiralty yacht Euphrates, under the command of Vice-Admiral Fitzroy. This fleet of ten warships will carry 171 officers and 4,800 men and have a total displacement of 78,600 tons.

Austria will send four warships, which will carry fifty-two officers and 1,213 men, and will represent a displacement of 13,804 tons. The Austrian fleet will be commanded by Rear Admiral Archduke Charles Stephen. Russia will send three ships under Rear Admiral Skiroff, with seventy officers and 1,300 men, representing 30,773 tons. Italy will make a gallant showing with nine warships, carrying 180 officers and 3,360 men, and representing 13,806 tons. The Italian fleet will be commanded by the duke of Genoa. France will only send three ships, but they will represent 15,800 tons, and will be manned by sixty officers and 1,300 men.

Scandinavia will send five ships, representing 3,504 tons, with fifty-five officers and 675 men under Rear Admiral Klinterberg. There will be three Spanish ships present, representing 17,500 tons, with fifty-six officers and 1,328 men. The Danish flag will be represented by six warships with thirty-two officers, 1,370 men, and 2,960 tons. The Netherlands will send two warships, representing 4,975 tons, with twenty-five officers and 413 men. There will be two Roumanian warships present, representing 1,600 tons, with twenty-five officers and 400 men. Turkey will be represented by a cruiser of 1,090 tons, having on board fifteen officers and 300 men.

OLDEST AMERICAN ACTOR.

C. W. Couldock Has Been on the Stage

Fifty-eight years on the stage is the record of Charles W. Couldock, and with one exception, he is the oldest actor in the English-speaking theatrical world. There is a member of Henry Irving's company, Henry Howe, who was born in 1813, and is three years older than Mr. Couldock, but here in the United States there is no player who can equal the long active service of Mr. Couldock, or the eighty years he reached on March 10th last. A talk with him, says the New York Sun, seems to link one with every period that has been notable in the dramatic annals of this country and recalls events which seem too remote to have been participated in by so hearty a person as Mr. Couldock is to-day. His associates in England were Charles Kean, Maria Weston, Vandenhoff and Mme. Celeste, but before he came into the sphere of people so famous he had acted in barns and walked between the small towns in which he played. His career in this country began in 1840, when he acted with Charlotte Cushman in "The Stranger." That was forty-six years ago, and ever since Mr. Couldock has been continuously on the stage. He appeared last in October in "New Blood" at Palmer's theater, New York.

Barring a slight deafness which has deprived him of the pleasure of going to the theater, the old actor is still vigorous and his memory is remarkable for its power of recalling details. Incidents of the beginning of his career are still as fresh in his mind as though he were only commencing his stage life instead of drawing near its close. It is a pleasure, too, when he speaks of the stage to-day to hear the generous, optimistic views he expresses. There is none of the cautious fault-finding which often comes from the old times. He finds the stage generally improved, and he is glad to acknowledge the fact and to explain what to him seem the reasons for it.

Wonderful Moths.

Australia does not possess many butterflies, but it has many varieties of moths. Wonderful creatures are some of these, which, at best, so exactly resemble a withered leaf that you would never suppose them to be anything else unless you chanced to see them move, which they are very careful not to do while you are looking at them.

GREAT NAVAL DISPLAY.

Magnificent Array of Warships to Attend the Kiel Festival.

The United States warships San Francisco and Marblehead, from the Mediterranean, and the New York, will rendezvous at Southampton and will proceed together to Kiel in order to take part in the elaborate fetes prepared there to celebrate the opening of the North sea and Baltic canal in June. It is estimated the four United States ships will represent 31,737 tons, with seventy-five officers and 1,497 men. Great Britain will be represented by four first-class twin-screw battleships, the Royal Sovereign, Empress of India, Resolution, and Temeraire; the first-class twin-screw cruisers Blenheim and Emden; the third-class cruiser Bellona; the first-class

Doctors Say: Bilious and Intermittent Fevers which prevail in miasmatic districts are invariably accompanied by derangements of the Stomach Liver and Bowels. The Secret of Health.

The liver is the great "driving wheel" in the mechanism of man, and when it is out of order, the whole system becomes deranged and disease is the result.

WON AT LAST

By Bernard Bigley.

"You have prepared your defense well, sir."

"My defense? What are you talking of, child?"

"But," she added, impressively, heedless of his mocking interruption, "if that man I speak of ever molests or annoys me by word or deed, I shall without another word of warning denounce him."

"And you should think that he would appreciate your discretion and give you no cause to regret such an exceedingly wise resolution."

"That will do, sir; we understand each other."

Elsie met with a warm welcome at the Whitfords. Millie was hysterical in her gladness to clasp her in her arms, calling her the preserver of her Jack, who sadly spoiled the poetry of the interview by calling from his bedroom to the young women to let him share the joy of Elsie's advent.

"Oh, you brave darlin'," he said, with tears running down his bronzed cheeks, "I ain't no great shakes on spec'fically, but when I think that but for you I should have been in kingdom-come, never have seen Millie, and the kid again, never—confound it, wife, what are yer blubberin' at—why, what I mean ter say is you've got a friend for life in Jack Whitford who won't fail you in the hour of need."

Then Elsie, all blushes, with a desire to turn the torrent of the man's gratitude modestly unheeded.

"You are looking better than I expected."

"Oh, I'm tough as hickory, Elsie. The doctors did kind of rasp me around, but I've pulled through in spite of 'em."

"And with good nursing you'll soon be well."

"Good nursing!" he cried, beaming affection on his wife, to whom his words were sweeter than honey; "that's what I want. Millie ain't up to much in that line; she don't worry an' cry her eyes, an' sit by a feller's bedside for sixty hours at a stretch without takin' a wink of sleep—not much she don't, no."

"Millie knows that what's good for nothing never comes to harm," the gratified wife saucily replied.

"The little is overworked," Elsie said, seriously, "and I am to share her labors. That is to say, if you will have me."

"Where her? They were wild with joy at the prospect. Millie kissed her fondly, and Jack said he would wait till he got well, and that tiresome wife of his was out of the way before he followed suit, whereupon Mrs. Whitford declared her solemn intention of sending to Chicago for a divorce and resigning her position as the prospector's cottage forthwith."

"But where's the little boy?" Elsie asked, presently, when the excitement of the meeting had sobered down a little.

"Ask her," Jack said, pointing to his wife. "That unnatural female sent him off to his grandmother's."

"Only for a day or two, to be out of the way," Millie explained.

"But I scotched her heartless scheme; the little chap's on his way back home."

"The great silliness couldn't be without his boy for even a couple of days," the wife said, laughing. "Now, Elsie, we must not let the invalid talk any more. You, sir, go to sleep and show some desire to please the best wife in this wicked world."

"MR. DODD, ONE WORD WITH YOU."

"God bless her—yes, the best wife in the world," the prospector muttered, as the door closed upon the two women.

"I have seen, dear," said Elsie, when they were alone, "he is so big and strong that even this sickness has hardly taught him the necessity of rest."

Weeks passed. Elsie was still with Mrs. Whitford. The pleasant harmony of the pretty home had brought the color back to her cheeks and elasticity to her steps, but Millie was in trouble about her young friend for all that. The fact was she was mystified, and as she could not read the puzzle joined like a woman to a wrong conclusion. Elsie Whitford was receiving letters—letters from a distance, which she read in her chamber and never discussed even with her bosom friend; ergo, this young woman argued, she is corresponding surreptitiously with some man, and she could that man be but Frank Grey? And the good little creature was considerably harassed by the discovery.

"That very night Elsie spoke."

"Millie," she said, "I want to tell you a secret."

Mrs. Whitford's eyes flashed suspicion at once.

"A secret, Elsie?" she asked, coldly.

"Yes, dear; and I want you to promise that you'll never breathe it to a living soul."

"Well—er—that sounds very mysterious, Elsie."

"Will you promise?"

"Ah, this is comfortable. Well, where's the gallant corporal an' how's Elsie?" Elsie's big eyes looked wistfully at her, as though she could not have caught the meaning of the emphatic monosyllable.

"Now, Elsie, may I ask you a question?" Mrs. Whitford gravely asked.

"Why certainly—of course."

"You were great friends with Mr. Grey?"

"Ah, yes, indeed, but those happy days are passed."

"How could I help it? So good, so generous, so self-denying. Millie, I love him more than words can tell. He found me a crude, ignorant girl, with no appreciation of the good and beautiful, no taste for books, no care for self-improvement, no ambition. He left me."

"Head over heels in love with him," laughed Millie. "That's the worst of handsome young men with a taste for literature."

Elsie's head dropped and a crimson blush suffused her cheeks.

"I think I did love him," she sighed.

"Well, then, I do love him—to me he is a king, a prince, a demigod."

"My gracious goodness! What a piece of infatuation would the child be!"

"And what is your question, Millie?"

"Is a very simple one. Have you heard from Mr. Grey since he left Oretown?"

"I heard from him! No, indeed, he has long ago forgotten me. What could such a man as he see in a girl like me to keep me in his memory, much less to trouble himself to write?"

"If he were not as stupid as an owl he would have seen one of the sweetest girls that ever existed on earth. So you have never heard from him?"

"Not a word."

"Then, dearest Elsie, the clouds are cleared away, and I can keep my secret, that is, if I may share it with Jack."

"That is of course, do you think, you stupid, that I would find you could keep a secret from Jack?"

"Well, now for the mystery—I do like mysteries."

"Do you remember, Millie, the two ladies who stayed a week at our house a year ago—the strangers from New York, who owned so many shares in the Buffalo mine?"

"Oh, yes; they captivated Jack, and he gave them a lot of mineral specimens."

"They took quite a fancy to me, and, if mother had not made so strong an objection, would have taken me back to New York with them."

"Ah, and you have been corresponding with them—I see it all."

"I have. I have asked them to offer me a temporary home."

"What else could I do? Misunderstood by father and mother, persecuted by a scoundrel with whom they are infatuated, what resource have I left?"

"This is very serious, Elsie. Have you the means to go—but that is a secondary consideration, for, of course, Jack?"

"Thanks, dear friend, but I have no designs on Jack's generosity. To-day I received from Mr. Baxter a draft for the expense of my journey and a loving renewal of her offers."

"Surely, Elsie, this great New York lady could not be coming at your leaving your home and her friends?"

"There's the trouble. You see I said in my letter that I was suddenly deprived of the care of my natural protectors, and I said they are laboring under the delusion that they are dead."

"Naturally."

"What must I do? I will not remain at home."

There was stern resolution in the young voice.

"Why stay in it, of course."

"No, Millie, it cannot be. A yearning for a change of life and scene burns in me like a fever. I have longings, aspirations—ah, you cannot understand."

"Well, you'll at least consult Jack."

"I will."

"And Jack promptly decided that whatever Elsie said or did was right, and that the Whitfords, who had made her miserable for 'that loathed scoundrel,' deserved no consideration from sensible people; however, Elsie was spared the humiliation of surreptitious flight, for she chanced to meet her father in the street and said to him, boldly and abruptly:

"Mrs. Baxter, of New York—my mother who told me I mean—has invited me to pay her a long visit and has sent me a bank draft for my expenses. I look to you to get me permission to go."

"And the coveted home-sanction came, and Elsie Whitford set out for New York, exultant at freeing herself from the wretchedness of her surroundings, and with her heart beating with hope for the future."

MR. DODD'S FRIEND.

"Missus! Missus!" Corporal Whitford shouted one sunny morning, as he was polishing his face, soldier-like, with soap and water, over a tub in his back yard. "Missus! There's some one a-bammerin' away at the front door—can't you hear 'em?"

"Some datted book agent, O'rekoon," remarked the angry dame, as she put aside her iron and hurried to answer the summons.

But the good woman had no sooner drawn back the door, with mouth already open to give the intruder an impatient reception, than she gave a little shriek of astonishment that started the corporal in the back kitchen.

"Why Jacob Gregson!" she gasped, when breath would come.

"Yes, it was he."

"Your dearly beloved cousin sure enough," the irrepressible visitor ejaculated, seizing her hand and wringing it enthusiastically. "Do you take me for a spook, Bess?"

J. T. MOORE CO.

Just as the luckless horseman approached the tree, Gregson, with a dramatic sweep of his hand, rushed forward and yelled at the top of his voice:

"Stop!"

The result was disastrous. The horse, which was moving at a rapid canter, stopped, plunged, and the unhappy rider was pitched like a ball from a catapult over his head, his huge, squat figure striking the earth with a dull thud, while the lively steed reared up on its hind legs, and, with a freedom and palloped off to Oretown.

"The lubberly fool!" Gregson groaned, as he saw his friend's equestrian somersault, but humanely helped Dodd to his feet, who stood gazing with blanched face at his unwonted appearance.

"Five-cent Gregson, is it you?" he stammered at last, in faltering tones.

"Yes, Mr. Tony Savage, it's me, sure enough! So I've run you to earth at last, have I? You white-livered cur, you treacherous rogue, that hasn't even picked to be honest with brother thieves."

"Of course you can. Words run slick enough for your oily tongue."

"I meant no harm, Jacob—at least none to you."

"Oh, no of course you didn't. You acted all along for my good, like a guardian angel, didn't yer? But you ain't here to pick up a parson's paltry."

"In jail. It was the only useful thing I ever learned from the chaplain's ministrations."

Thus in pleasant converse they reached Oretown.

It was a jovial day for Corporal Whitford, in the evening to do dishonoring his bank notes to the faces of disreputable creditors, he was charged by his hospitable wife to bid their friends congratulate him on the honor to the visit of their well-to-do relation, whose questionable display the Whitfords knew would make a favorable impression in the neighborhood.

The party was a grand success. Mr. Gregson shone as a bright particular star, rendering with a good deal of natural talent, much small consolation, and the company were new to his listeners. The corporal reared 'The British Grenadiers,' and even the hostess quavered through it with a firm and steady voice.

But an inspiration had flashed across Dodd's fertile brain. When, during that illness to which his old acquaintance alluded, he had tended Gregson through a sharp attack of delirium tremens, he had caught some of the wild words of the poor wretch's delirium and stored them in his memory for future use, feeling pretty sure the sick man's phrases were based on actual events—anyhow, his own case was desperate, and he would fire a shot with the chance of hitting a mark.

THE UNHAPPY RIDER WAS PITCHED.

"Is your life blameless, Jacob Gregson?" he asked. "Man, have you forgotten the rotten bridge of Newton look? Do you never hear the screams of the poor girl who dived into the dark waters? Do you never—"

"Hold!" cried Gregson, quivering with terror. "In mercy hold, I cannot bear it. You will drive me mad."

"Ah!" Dodd gave a sigh of intense satisfaction. "I think this little bit of an exchange of confidence will cement our friendship. We have both a past to conceal. So, like wise men, we will 'help each other. Is it so, my friend?"

"But you will not come between me and the girl?" Gregson asked, with white lips.

"Not I. That game's been played out between her and me, and she won hands down. No. I only want to stay in the place long enough to mature a few little mining speculations—innocent little schemes which may pan out pretty profitably."

"That's no business of mine," Gregson said, generously. "You may avoid the whole blooming population for what I care. So let's shake hands and start fair."

"With pleasure."

"And what lay are you on now, Tony?"

"I'm Rev. Archibald Dodd, Hopkinstown minister; Do you twig, Jake?"

"Tony, you are a clipper!" Mr. Gregson rejoined enthusiastically. "How- ever did you pick up a parson's paltry?"

"In jail. It was the only useful thing I ever learned from the chaplain's ministrations."

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

We are authorized to announce
JUDGE JOHN PHELPS
as a candidate for Circuit Court Judge in this district, subject to the action of the Democratic party. Election November 5, 1895.

We are authorized to announce
JUDGE THOMAS F. COOK
as a candidate for Circuit Court Judge in this district, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce
JUDGE THOS. J. MORROW
as a candidate for Circuit Judge of the Third Judicial District, subject to the action of the Democratic party Election July 6.

By authority we announce
JUDGE J. W. WATKINS
of Lyon county, as a candidate for Circuit Judge of the Third Judicial District, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

Judges Phelps and Morrow have made no agreement to divide the vote of Christian county and it is understood that they will submit their claims to the mass convention at the court house on July 6 and that the successful candidate will receive the entire 12 votes of the county in the Edgelyville convention. The two Calloway candidates will do the same, and when the convention meets on July 10 it is not likely that more than four candidates will be named—one from each county.

You can line 'em up one by one, and unless there is a personal difference or obligation, the fight between Linn and Cook is the Stone and Hendrick fight over again in this county. It was forced from the start by the Linn men, with the purpose in view of capturing Lyon county; but gracious! how it has recoiled on them in Calloway, since Watkins has announced in Lyon county—Murray Ledger.

A thorough canvass of all the business men of Nashville on the money question has been made by a local enthusiast. He reports 70 per cent. of the retail men for free silver and about the same per cent. of the wholesale men for gold. According to this estimate that city is about 16 to 1 in favor of free silver.

Even the three or four gold men on the Christian county delegation declare themselves opposed to endorsing Cleveland and Calloway. They are in favor of no action along that line, and upon a resolution of that sort Christian would vote as a unit against it.

We will bury the hatchet, so come along, Bro. Meacham. Jim Smith says he will kill the fatted calf for the prodigal, and we will hunt up a silver ring for you, and would get shoes for your feet, but leather has advanced—Eddyley Tale.

Congressman Hill is convalescent, and has left Washington for Narragansett Pier, R. I., where he expects to regain his health more rapidly.

The Famous Trip to the Sea Shore.
While the trip to Old Point Comfort is more than a month off there is already more interest manifested than for several years past, and there is not the least doubt about a big crowd August 7. The rate has not yet been announced, but will be about the same as formerly, and the route and other conditions will be similar to former programs. As every one who has ever taken this delightful trip well knows, it is one of great enjoyment, at very small expense, and all who can possibly arrange to go should do so. So much has already been said complimentary of the famous C. & O. route, over which the party is always taken, that little need be said to be told. It is a well-known fact that everyone who can arrange to do so, goes on the trip in the summer months. There is so much to attract in the beauty and variety of the scenery along the Chesapeake & Ohio railway, especially along the Kanawha and through New River canals and across the Allegheny and Blue Ridge mountains that this has become the popular route from the west to the summer resorts of the Allegheny mountains. DEATHS.

McPHERSON.—Judge Jno. W. McPherson died at his home in this city Friday night, the 21st inst., after a long illness of dropsy. His condition had been growing worse for some weeks and his death was not unexpected. The funeral services were held at the Ninth street Presbyterian church, in which body deceased had long been an elder. Most of the churches held no morning services and the procession that followed the body to the cemetery was one of the largest ever seen in the city.

The following brief sketch of his life is taken from Perrin's history of Christian county.
"John W. McPherson was born in Fanniquan county, Va., Sept. 18, 1826. His father, John McPherson, and his mother, Sarah McDonald, both of whom were of Scotch ancestry, were born and reared in Virginia. Judge McPherson was the youngest of eleven children. He attained his majority in his native state, receiving an academic education. In 1844 he began the study of law, and two years later he was admitted to practice which he commenced in Louisville, Mo. Va. He continued to practice there until 1859, having meantime served as county attorney for eight years. He came to Christian county in 1859 and engaged in merchandising, but in 1864 resumed his practice, in which he was very successful. From 1865 until 1877 he was associated with one of the leading lawyers of the firm name of McPherson & Chaplain. He was married in West Virginia in Dec. 1849, to Miss Margaret Withrow. Five sons and one daughter were the fruits of this union.

Some years ago Judge McPherson married again. His second wife was Miss Nannie Peoples, of Louisiana, who survives him. All of his children excepting the oldest son also survive. In 1888 Judge McPherson was elected judge of the court of common pleas for Christian county, in one of the hottest elections ever held in the county, defeating a popular Republican by a good margin. This position he held for four years, until the court was abolished. In all the walks of life, whether public or private, he commanded the respect and esteem of his neighbors. He was a lawyer of ability and standing, a judge upright and impartial, a citizen of worth and influence and a gentleman who enjoyed the confidence and good will of a large circle from friends who learned to appreciate his many noble qualities during a residence of 35 years in his inimitable home. In his death the bar loses a prominent member, the church one of its mainstays, the community a valued citizen and his family a devoted husband and father.

The bar held a meeting Saturday morning and adopted the following resolutions, Judge Petree presiding: Whereas, John W. McPherson, a man of wisdom has removed from our midst our beloved brother, the Hon. Jno. W. McPherson,

Resolved, That in his death we have lost an esteemed brother, and the community has lost a good citizen, an able lawyer and an upright judge and a Christian gentleman.

Resolved, That we extend to the family of the deceased our heartfelt sympathy and that as an act of respect to his memory we ask that this court stand now adjourned until Monday morning. That we attend his funeral in a body, and that these resolutions be spread upon the record, and that copies be sent to the family of the deceased.

HANCOCK.—Mrs. J. M. Hancock died near Fairview on the 13th inst., of consumption.

WEAVER.—Mr. George W. Weaver, one of the most prominent and influential citizens of the Bainbridge neighborhood, died at his home near that place Sunday, after an illness of several weeks. Mr. Weaver was 65 years old and had lived in the county for a number of years. He was born in Virginia, but moved to Kentucky when a young man. He was a good man and will be missed from that community. The interment occurred yesterday afternoon at Harmony Grove church.

METCALFE.—Charles Metcalfe died in the city Sunday of typhoid fever, aged 17 years.

The first bloomer reached Nashville last week.

"Bob" and "Alf."
Bob Taylor and his brother, Alf, have been induced to take the platform in joint discussion, Bob choosing "Dixie" and Alf addresses himself to "Yankee Doodle." It will be one of the drawing attractions of next season to hear these two gifted brothers again, and will revive memories of the white and red rose carnivals of the past summer. They are the two worthies for Oct. 30, and Clarksville, Nashville and Hopkinsville are the only cities in this section of the country afforded an opportunity of hearing Bob and Alf-Leaf-Chlorine.

The various watering places around are filling up with guests as the hot-tempered approaches.

Obituary of Mrs. Sarah A. Chilton.

A great pall of sorrow was cast up on the household of Mr. Frank M. Chilton, Pembroke, when on the morning of May 14th, the death-angel entered and claimed for his own the beloved wife and devoted mother in the person of Mrs. Sarah A. Chilton.

She was the daughter of Wm. Lassen, deceased, and was born in Hopkinsville, July 29, 1858. Early in life she was a devoted follower of Christ and united with the Presbyterian church, and through all the years gave abundant and lovely evidence that she was truly a child of God and had been redeemed in the blood of the Lamb.

She was one of the early graduates of Walnut Hill Seminary near Lexington, Ky., where she spent several sessions acquiring an education and from which she came forth with all the equipments of a varied and thorough mental culture to fit her for the future work of life.

A short time after her marriage she united in marriage to Mr. Frank M. Chilton, with whom she continued to live in unbroken peace and fondest love to the hour of her marriage she changed her church relations, becoming a member of the Baptist church at "Old Bethel," then under the pastoral care of Rev. Geo. Hunt, to whom, as her spiritual guide and adviser she grew deeply attached.

Those who knew Mrs. Chilton do not wonder that her death caused such a profound grief. The loving children who survive her, three sons and two daughters, rise up to call her blessed; her husband, also by predeceasing her, "For, like Solomon's virtuous woman, her price was far above riches."

She was indeed a beautiful type of all that constitutes a noble Christian womanhood. Not only a loving wife, but a faithful counselor and helper was she; not only an indulgent, devoted mother, but a wise instructor, a safe, true guide for the inexperienced feet of her children; not only a loyal friend, but a diligent worker in the busy world, doing with her might what her hands found to do. In her character were blended all the domestic virtues, rendering her one of the noblest and best of womanhood. She loved her home which her presence made bright and cheerful, and lived for her husband and children a life of self-sacrificing devotion. But this was not all; her church laid no claim upon her, which she did not cheerfully respond and her influence for good radiated in all directions and fell as a benediction on those about her.

For two or three years before her death she was greatly afflicted but bore her sufferings most patiently and bravely. The cup she drank held many bitter drops, but she took it as from a loving Father's hand who did "all things well," and chastened only for her good. Human love did all that was possible to spare her the pangs of suffering and to prolong the life that was so precious to the home circle and friends, but God's will came up higher to those heavenly mansions of eternal beauty prepared for such as she.

At Mostar, in the Herzegovina, a husband and wife died a most extraordinary death together. The wife went to the wine cellar to fetch a mug of strong, new wine for her husband's supper, and as the enormous cask was not full, she leaned over and fell into it. Her husband immediately dropped in after her to save her, and both were drowned a few minutes. Their property is valued at twenty thousand pounds sterling, but they lived as simple peasants.

Good Health

And a good appetite go hand in hand.

With the loss of appetite, the system cannot long sustain itself. Thus the fortifications of good health are broken down and the system is liable to attacks of disease. It is in such cases that the medicinal powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla are clearly shown. Thousands who have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla testify to its great merits as a purifier of the blood, its power to restore and sharpen the appetite, and promote a healthy action of the digestive organs. Thus it is, not what we say but what Hood's Sarsaparilla does that tells the story and constitutes the strongest recommendation that can be urged for any medicine. Why not take Hood's Sarsaparilla now.

HERE AND THERE.

The many friends of Dr. S. J. Baker will be glad to learn that he has returned to Madisonville to stay. It will be remembered that Doc went to Hopkinsville last fall to locate. While he was there he made many friends, his love for mother and father and old Madisonville was too great to keep him away. The doctor will office with his father in the Masonic Temple and will confine his practice principally to diseases of the eye, ear and nose, which he has made specialties.—Hustler.

Tom Grundy is developing quite a mania for catching snakes. He captures all kinds of serpents and handles them alive with his ungloved hands. Some time ago he was bitten on the arm by a moccasin, which carried his arm in a sling for several days. One of his latest catches is confined in the Racket window in a box. It is a very large black or copper snake, over three feet in length. It is fed on young English sparrows, and seems well satisfied with its captivity.

One of the most brilliant and enjoyable social events of the season was the reception given last Thursday evening by Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Long in honor of the Mandolin and Guitar club. The grounds were brightly lighted and elegant refreshments were served and highly enjoyed by the large crowd of young people present.

Many A Watch Will Run

More than two years without cleaning, but many a watch has been allowed to run longer than that.

We nearly always find that the pivots are cut in watches that have run long without cleaning, and unless the pivots are polished and holes repaired,—or new pivots inserted,—the watch will not keep as good time as before.

When your watch needs cleaning, or any repairs, bring it to us and it will be done PROMPTLY and in a FIRST-CLASS manner.

RAMBLERS

Won at Maysville.

More prizes were won at Maysville on Ramblers than were won on any other make of wheels. Out of a possible 23 prizes, 11 were won on Ramblers, including a hill-climbing contest which was won on a Rambler. Four first prizes, 5 and 3 seconds. Rambler riders always win. These were class A riders and not paid amateurs. The boys ride Ramblers from choice and pay $100 each for their machines because they want to ride Ramblers knowing the Rambler is the fastest bicycle built. If you want to win, ride a Rambler.
